To Whom It May Concern:

Our mission at The National Center for Missing & Exploited Children (NCMEC) is to help prevent child abduction and sexual exploitation; to help find missing children; and assist victims of child abduction and sexual exploitation, their families, and the professionals who serve them. As President & Chief Executive Officer of NCMEC, I have been blessed to see more than 94,500 children recovered. As we seek to provide services nationwide for families and professionals in the prevention of abducted, endangered, and sexually exploited children, we are always eager for the partnership and support of groups dedicated to protecting children.

Enough Is Enough's (EIE) work has supported our mission by educating and empowering families about Internet dangers. EIE's preventative work motivates parents to establish proactive Internet safety rules and also to use the technological tools necessary to help prevent children from being victimized by online predators.

At NCMEC, we have seen how every new technological innovation can be used for harm; predators will use social networking sites, chat rooms, instant messaging, and email to target unsuspecting children. Parents must remain informed to protect their children from this threat; EIE plays a critical role in educating parents to be involved on their children's online life, and I thank them for their tremendous work to protect children nationwide.

Sincerely,

Ernie Allen
